

Week 10 Study Guide

Angle	Mathematics a. The figure formed by two lines diverging (separating out) from a common point. b. The figure formed by two planes diverging (separating out) from a common line. Do not confuse “angel” with “angle”, which looks like this  and not like this  English Language You have a unique way of thinking about a problem or an issue. It almost means the same thing as “perspective”.
Base	Algebra This is the bottom number of an exponent, of an exponential expression. It is the big number that the exponent is operating on by usually multiplying with it but you can also divide the bottom number, like this: number <sup>exponent</sup> English Language Alkaline; the opposite of an acid when it has H<sub>2</sub>O with it. The first layer, the bottom, the fundamental support, as in cheerleading where you are the one that lifts everybody up and they trust you for that.
Clarify	You ask a question to bring the objects or ideas into focus. You can explain, illuminate, elucidate, resolve, and make it easier to understand. You say something again so it becomes understandable and clear. You work to minimize misunderstandings. You restate.
Connote/Connotation Denote/Denotation	This is the definition and meaning of words, literally. So this is the emotional impact, the physical response we have to reading words, figuratively.
Courteous	You act in a polite, respectful, considerate way. You shake hands after you lose the game because you have excellent style.
Fraction	A number expressed as the quotient of two numbers in this form: a/b. It is a ratio. This comes from a totally old word that means “to break into pieces”. That’s what you do with division; you fracture numbers.
Infer	You figure something out; come to a conclusion; you build on your information and evidence. It’s like a guess, only smarter.
Write Right Rite	You use a marking device to make characters, like you use a pen Correct Traditional practices of celebration and life milestones
