

Week 12 Study Guide

Diagram	In math, you make beautiful line drawings _ _____ math theorems. In your informational text, you notice there is a _____, _____, or _____ with all the parts explained in labels. If you are doing science, you draw a picture, chart, or outline. Then you label and explain all the parts.
Equation	A complete mathematical ‘ _____ ’, that has the verbs (_____) and the nouns (_____ and maybe some variables), but the ‘ _____ ’ has the _____ _____ in it so you know you can solve it – which may mean proving the equation to be false. How, in a just world can an equation need to be proved true or false? What trickery is this? We thought equations were always, always true. We deal with this disappointment as best we can.
Gratitude	You feel _____. You have a feeling of _____ and you think you might say thanks for your life.
Illustrate/Illustration	You notice there is a _____ or _____ that helps you understand better - like a picture that is worth a thousand words. It helps when we see a good example. Near the picture or graph is a _____, perhaps.
Metaphor	You have two separate _____; you put them together to make a new _____, _____, or _____. Like a clock with wings or a stone cold heart.
Operation	It’s what you _____ in math (it’s the _____ of mathematics) Start with these processes: addition & subtraction, division & multiplication. This gives you the _____ to act, to _____ the puzzles in the game of mathematics In English we use this word to denote steps that you take when you do stuff, such as turning these cogs. It also can mean steps the doctors take to repair or remove your damaged funny bone.
Valid	The _____ answer; the information is the most _____, _____, and the most effective. It can also mean your driver’s license, hunting, fishing licenses are still in force and will allow you to do the activity.
Whole Hole	This means _____, _____, complete The empty part, vacant area